1. Who won? Will we ever know? We'll see very soon.

2. How was Halloween? Anything happen? No one came trick n treating. We had stuff with goblins, etc.

3. What are you doing for hair care these days? The hair care is fine; mine is a bit thin, but no ponytail but it has grayish hair.

4. Canning or freezing anything you grew? Did the canning and freezing way back when.....living in coastal San Diego is good. We have bad sand around, but plants get watered outside, and even in the inside. Living back in Wis., my mother had a "plant room" with so I like to have them inside also.

5. Any weight or mental changes from COVID restrictions? Not really.

8. Best hamburger you ever ate was? From? Haven't had a hamburger in quite awhile. Do like it a bit but no steak; like chicken, esp. Costco.

9. Back to standard time! Change your routine? Yes, turned hr. darker; right now it's going a bit dark 5ish and we'll have a wonderful sunset over the ocean soon.

10. Remembering Sean Connery. Your memories of 007. - Don't remember cuz of too many yrs ago.

I made 5 batches of black raspberry jelly on Halloween.

We pick the wild berries at our "farm" on hot days in July and freeze them- to juice and turn into jelly in cooler months, when there is more time.

Most of this jelly goes to our daughters. This time I made one low sugar batch.

Quite good.

I still would pay a lot for a cheeseburger from Buzz's here in Rapids, unfortunately long gone for years now.

At this point the “media “refuses to call Pennsylvania North Carolina and Georgia for Trump. If Trump wins all of those he will have 265 electoral votes

That leaves Nevada as the deciding state with six electoral votes; if they go to Biden he gets to 270 and wins. Trump will get to 271 with a win. Biden needs between 60 and 65% of remaining uncounted votes in PA NC and GA

Nevada is a state that decided not to count votes Tuesday so they can decide what to do tomorrow and where to get the extra ballots via harvesting or other chicanery.

Well, I'm watching election news tonight (Wednesday), and I believe we'll know soon who won. We were living in Florida during the Bush-Gore election of 2000, and we knew the winner about three weeks after election day. It all hinged on Florida's "hanging chads" on some of the ballots, and the Supreme Court stopped the recount--which seemed to be taking forever.

All the mail-in ballots which arrived on time in AZ, NV, GA and PA need to be counted. Too bad the ballots have to be counted by hand. It seems so old-fashioned.
