1. Businesses have been open to some degree here all along as hardware, menards, costco, walmart, pick n save are all considered essential. About the only unusual one is we will go to get nails and hair cut tomorrow. Not sure if barber shop is open yet though.

5. Dry cleaners - still use one? Yes our dress uniforms for the fire service require dry cleaning. Even though retired when I do go to functions this is required.

8. Ever get a D grade in school? What subject? Got one in college do not remember the course and had to take it over. Reminded me to buckle down more.

9. Do you like reality TV shows? Why or why not? If so, which ones? Watch Justice Channel alot since we only have over the air free service on the farm. Forensic files and those shows very entertaining.

10. Get out of the house on Memorial Day? Where did you go? Did get out and went to Costco, Walmart, and Menards for garden supplies. I think we even hit Farm and Fleet.

So, take your mind off it by writing about these topics."

I do not want people to take their minds off of the abuse of rights, the racial injustice, nor the harm to those people who had their Businesses, homes, and communities damaged and/or destroyed. We need to learn from their protest and what happens in their communities.

I was in my early twenties and working as an agent for the Justice Department. During the years following the Sterling Hall Bombing at the University of Wisconsin in Madison, we had three teams assigned to every protest / demonstration. My team was inside the protestor / demonstrator group with a password to stop the cops from beating us. I never used it. I stayed away from insulting gals and guys with weapons.

1. What good things are happening in America? Our nation has learned from the protest of those with grievances. We must continue to learn from those with the courage to speak out when they have been aggrieved.

2. What is the biggest challenge you are facing right now? I am considering going back to work.
3. Have you ever received a strange gift? What was it? Many holiday parties with nursing units have involved "White Elephant Gifts or Prizes." Regardless of how hard they have tried, I always feel like a winner. Sometimes I win because I know about my coworkers' families and can give a rotten gift for me as a great gift for a colleague to give to a child, e.g., I got a STAT call to run 300 yards to patients room to capture a poisonous South American tree frog which had been released when a plant was unwrapped. I captured the little guy easily. I knew the nurse's daughter was going off to college as a biology major. The tree frog was gift wrapped and sent to a new home. The report was not good. The frog was not to be found the next afternoon. I was summoned to find, catch and remove, I asked a couple of questions that led to learning that two cats were licking their paws and wiping their faces and mouths.

4. What is the most recent success you've had? Golden Wedding Anniversary,

5. What hobbies did you have when you were younger? Hunting, fishing, camping, canoeing, weight lifting, scouts, electronics, reading, writing, music, and science. Almost forgot "girls." All are still hobbies or vocations except "Girls." I have graduated along with Julio and Willy (and dedicate the song "To All the Girls I Loved Before.")

6. What clubs have you been a part of? Scouts, Toastmasters, Ham Radio
