OPPORTUNITY HAS KNOCKED

Oh no! The senior's don't feel hurt! Not much! At least they don't show their feelings, but way down deep in their hearts they determine to show their ability.

Here are some of the remarks we over-heard. "Doesn't it seem funny that all those 'little kids' are seniors?" "I know I am not going to have half as a good a time this year as I did last year now that Chic, Carl, and all the other seniors are gone."

Why don't you give us a chance? We'll do our best, but we expect you to co-operate. You know, it is the Juniors who have charge of a large share of the activities!

Regardless of the belittling remarks, we are all looking forward to a bigger and better annual, class play, class day, and graduation.

Please give us your assistance and good wishes.

--Ethel Murgatroyd

School Spirit?

THAT'S WHAT YOU THINK!

All aboard folks? We are now leaving upon my magic carpet for a visit. Here we go!

and here we are!

"Bong! Hey, who threw that book?"

"Search me."

"Great Scott! Who was the author of the novel, 'Ivanhoe'?"

"I don't know, but who the dickens wrote 'The Christmas Carol'?"

"Hey you! Quit shooting paper wads."

"Oh go sock your head!"

"What's the answer to the third problem in Arithmetic?"

"I think it's D. M. = B. R."

"Duck! here comes another book."

"Boy! that just missed your head."

"Ouch! "Who put that thumb tack on my seat?"

"Hey you kids, pipe down, here comes teacher."

You are wrong, folks; this was not an insane asylum; it was a study hall in the absence of a teacher.

By acting as these pupils did on that day, they themselves gave the school a bad name. Let's hope that similar unfortunate occurrences do not find thier way into J. E. H. S.

The object of pupils in a class should be to conduct themselves in a business like way, whether a teacher is present or not. If a class conducts itself in a dependable way, it will be contributing a real quality to school spirit.

--Dale Ashburn

WHAT A SEVENTH GRADER THINKS ABOUT.

A seventh grade pupil who has never before attended this school walks slowly from the direction of town and progresses more and more slowly as he approaches the school.

He is passed by group after group of other pupils, all talking and laughing among themselves. After a few minutes of this, the neophyte takes heart and realizes that high school can't be so bad, or the others wouldn't be so cheerful. Pausing but an instant before the door, he passes into the principal's office.

A few minutes later, on his way upstairs, he again lags, because it is known to him that on the floor above are the teachers who will shape his destiny for the next year.

Finally, arriving on the second floor, he watches others scramble-

ELECTION NEWS

WHO?

U-RAH-RAH!

Amid challenging looks and tinges of sarcasm the three parties gallantly went forth on their campaign activities, each party at each other's throat.

The morning following the nominations, September 19th, the pupils upon entering the school were greeted by colorful posters of the two most active parties. It took the third party a couple of days to get started, but then they started out with flying colors, and they were still going strong five days later.

The Co-op's, after reading the advertisement about the Tri-Hard's snake dance and bonfire on the evening of Thursday the 22nd, not to be outdone, got one jump ahead of them and had a matinee dance on Thursday afternoon. So went the rivalry between these two. The third party preferred to remain outside this local difficulty.

Badges have been sported by all three parties. The Co-op's appeared bright and early on Monday morning with white square badges, containing the names of the parties' candidates. On Wednesday, the Tri-Hard's more elaborate orange and black ones were seen pinned to many of their loyal supporters. At the same time, the Up-to-Daters' yellow and blue circles floated everywhere.

Great artistic ability was shown on the posters that were scattered profusely about the school.

Monday told the story. None of the candidates looked any worse for the wear.

IT'S THE FINALS!

At last! No more worry. No more curiosity. Everyone seems glad the final elections are over. The candidates are relieved of their poster-making and campaigning, and everyone seems satisfied.

By a large majority of votes, the Tri-Hards party came into power with the election of the following officers:

Mayor--Ethel Murgatroyd

Clerk--Margaret Olson

Treasurer--Bernice Russell

The number of votes cast for each party was as follows:

Tri-Hards 241

Co-ops 122

Up-to-Daters 49

The election, which took place on Monday afternoon, September 26, was conducted by the ninth grade Citizenship Class.

--Lorraine Shilluis

WE THANK YOU

We, the representatives of the Tri-Hards party, wish to express our thanks to all who supported us in the recent campaign and election.

Ethel Murgatroyd-----Mayor

Margaret Olson-----Clerk

Bernice Russell--Treasurer

BUREAU OF MISSING PERSONS

Virginia Lewis seems to be missing some very good friend. Where could he be?

Dorothy Kolstra found missing since the close of school last June. Anyone knowing her whereabouts please notify friends and classmates.

Comedian of class missing! Layton Leiser, comedian of the former Junior Class has been missing since June of last year.

Receives Award

PORT RESIDENT

Vince Gavre, the regular quarterback on the University of Wisconsin football team, has won the Walter Alexander Scholarship Award for this year. Walter Alexander, from Milwaukee, attended the University of Wisconsin and played on the gridiron many years ago. The Alexander Award will be given away for the next four years.

Vince returned to football practice at the University, September 10. He was presented with the Award by Mr. Alexander at the Kick-off Luncheon.

As a regular quarterback he played in most of the games last year and did wonderful work out there on the gridiron. Vince also seems to be the favorite player to start the quarterback position this season.

Gavre attended the Junior High School at Port Edwards, and then went to Nekeosa where he graduated. Vince played his first football on the gridiron at Nekeosa.

We congratulate Vince for receiving the Award, and wish him the best of luck during the coming football season this year.

WATCH US GROW!!

School days are here again with most of the Senior Class being very happy because, at last, they are Seniors!

The 1938-39 school year opened on September 7 with many new members.

They are: Agnes Sutherland, Lorraine Seebruck, Jack and Perry Griffith, Harry Allivarden, Winifred and Shirley McGill, Bradley Bennett, Robert Griffith, Donald Lipka, Lenorr Powell, and Tony Martin.

Some of the classes have increased, while others have decreased. The Senior Class has increased from fourteen members last year to nineteen members this year. The Sophomore Class has increased from fifteen members to thirty-five, while the Junior Class decreased from nineteen to sixteen. The Freshman Class has decreased from thirty-seven to twenty-four.

However, several new members have enlarged the enrollment of last year's eighth grade. This year the Sophomore Class is the largest.

In general, however, the enrollment of the school is increasing from year to year.

--Harvey Eichsteadt

In A Hurry

We Seniors believe you might be interested in knowing that we not only have decided upon our commencement supplies but also have ordered them.

When a vote was taken, all except two students wanted caps and gowns for graduation. I am sure, if you saw last year's class, that you will agree with the majority that the caps and gowns add a tone of distinction to a graduating class.

Our calling cards and announcements were ordered also. The announcements are to have a cut of the school in them. The seniors chose this particular pattern because of its beauty and simplicity.

We really aren't in a hurry to graduate, but we just had to tell someone.

As the morning passes, the new pupil becomes more interested and soon realizes school is a worthwhile place.

Librarians

Twenty two girls met on Wednesday afternoon, September 21, to form a Library Club which promises to be very interesting! The purpose of this club is to teach the members the use and care of the library. They will learn how to take care of new books when they come in, check books out, take care of the card catalogue, and take charge of the library. They will have social as well as business meetings and several parties during the year.

At the first meeting, a constitution was started and officers elected as follows: President---Bette Howard; Vice President--Ione Hasse; Secretary--Joan Auchter; Treasurer--Virginia Hopkins. The meetings will be held once every two weeks.

The charter members are: Joyce Berryman, Margaret Olson, Dorothy Paulson, Marjorie Sage, Maurine Ratelle, Doris Alexander, Virginia Lewis, Mildred Ziemann, Ethel Murgatroyd, Arlene Hubbard, Lorraine Shilluis, Elaine Carlson, Elaine Oleson, Shirley Nelson, Dorothy Moulton, Virginia Benson, Leona Buchholz, Freda McKenney, Joan Auchter, Ione Hasse, Bette Howard, Virginia Hopkins.

WHAT'S NEW IN THE LIBRARY?

Have you noticed all the new books our school library has purchased? Our library is growing every year.

Last spring the Senior Britannica was purchased, but because it was too difficult for the high school we have a Britannica Junior. Did you ever look through one? The material is right to the point and very easy to understand.

The Smithsonian Scientific series are very valuable for scientific reference work. These are some of their many titles:

Insects, Great Inventions, The Sun and the Welfare of Man, Cold and Warm Blooded Vertebrates, North American Indians, and Minerals From Earth and Sky.

A number of other books have been added, many of which are fiction, such as:

Pitcairn's Island-----Nordhoff
& Hall

Silver Chief to the Rescue-----
O'Brien

Sunny Hill-----Jarnson

Bitsy Finds the Clue-----Seaman

Jean and Company Unlimited-----
Curtis

Last Flight-----Amelia Earhart
Story of a Bill--Clarence C. Dill

COMING ATTRACTIONS

Mathematics For The Million
--by Lancelot Hogben

Why do we "square" numbers to find area?

Why are there 360 degrees in a circle?

Where do we get our base number 10?

How has mathematics been of vital importance to you in our future social progress?

These are some of the many questions answered for you in this book.

It's Fun To Cook
--by Lucy M. Malthy

Eleanor Ann and Elsie Jane, high school girls who know very little about cooking received a wire that their two starved cousins were arriving at 5:45. Imagine two girls who knew very little about cooking, trying to cook a dinner.

Last Flight
--by Amelia Earhart

The story of Amelia Earhart's last flight around the world is told in this book from dispatches, personal letters, and diaries.

--Agnes Bruener

LOOK WHAT WE HAVE!

We pause for a moment in the library and overhear several remarks such as, "on this old pencil sharpener won't work again!, why can't we have any different books? There's no typewriter available anyway."

That was what we heard last year, but this year we haven't heard one complaint.

The commercial department has secured six more typewriters, so even with the sixth, seventh, and eighth graders taking typing two half hours a week, we're still able to get a typewriter to use when we want one.

But that ins't all the new equipment in the commercial room! There is an automatic feeding mimeograph machine which ought to make it easier for the workers when the newspapers and annual start coming out. We have to thank the class of 1938 for its financial assistance in helping to purchase this machine.

The girls in the advanced typing class are quite excited about the three new dictaphone sets too. Miss Hermanson promised to let them use the sets frequently later on in the year.

With two new gas stoves in the Home Economics Room, there ought to be enough room for the boys to squeeze in at one of the stoves.

~~The cooking tables have all been painted a striking looking black and white.~~

The girls can take advantage of the chances to learn to sew, to cook, to learn principles of decorating, and to learn the requirements of personal grooming. ~~Whether you think so or not, this last requirement aids one in getting a job and in getting along with people.~~

We see that many of the boys are interested in the new class in metal working that the Manual Arts Course has to offer them this year. Through this course, the boys are able to learn metal working, drafting, electricity, and leather work.

For our very capable students, like Marjorie Hubbard, Freda McKinney, Bernice Russell, and others there is the advanced art class in addition to the first year art class.

For a school of our size, we can certainly feel proud of the fact that we have so much wonderful equipment to work with and so many courses to choose from.

S O R R Y ?

"Mother! where's my shirt?"

"What time is it?"

"Mother, will you get me some notebook paper today?"

Such are the queries put to mothers here and all over the nation during early September. School is opening, and oh! what a change occurs in the minds of school children as they return school, after their summer vacation.

As soon as school closes in the spring, children rush about doing a great number of things. Strange but those minds that struggled over school work are busy conceiving many new and very different activities. Picnics, swimming, roller-skating, and parties of various types follow one another in rapid succession. Carnivals, circuses, and movies contribute their bit to full youth's bill of activity for the summer. Every little incident is told and retold. Boy dates girl, and she tells her friends, while he tells his chums all about his girl. Pictures are exhibited and memory books are filled. Action is the keynote of the summer, and entertainment is action's synonym.

However, too soon for many vacationists, September is here, and school begins just as it always has. Now, summer carnivals and circuses are replaced by Junior Carnivals, Dramatic Club plays, assembly programs, and organization activities.

Swimming and tennis disappear as basketball and football take over public interest. Studies occupy much of the time that was spent on memory books and photographs. Band, chorus, and matinee dances replace summer band concerts and jitterbug jamborees.

Yes, summer is over and school-time is definitely here with its many busy activities to replace summer interests. Are you sorry? Are you glad?

--Virginia Hopkins

The Unexpected

Every spring the people in Central Wisconsin read in the newspapers about the floods in lower Illinois, Indiana and Ohio.

During a recent week Central Wisconsin had a chance to observe first hand what happens during a flood. Even the old timers say they cannot remember when water, unaided by the ice or snow, has reached such a high level. More rain fell from September 7 to September 11 than usually falls in a normal summer.

It was in the third week after the rains began that the condemned signs were removed from public drinking fountains. Extensive damage was done to basements during the past two or three weeks; nearly house in Port Edwards had water in the cellar, the amount ranging from inches to feet.

The Port Edwards Fire Department was called out to pump water from basements and to keep sewers from plugging and overflowing. The pumping continued for days until the days ran into weeks.

The flood conditions affected the schools, for many of the pupils who drank the contaminated water were absent from school because of illness.

The gasoline engine that pumped water from the sewer in front of the school house was a great source of irritation to teachers and pupils. Finally, a new electric pump was substituted for it, so that the water could be pumped in larger quantities, but noiselessly.

--Gerald Hausor

IT WON'T BE LONG NOW!

It is very hard to talk about football in our high school, but we may have a team in the future. Many high schools are starting to have a six-man football team, which we may have here. The equipment for this sport costs very much, and the school could not get insurance on the players without equipment.

The boys are starting to talk about basketball, which will begin right after the first six weeks. This early practice will give the boys an excellent opportunity to get organized. The players out for basketball this year will be about the same except for Don Morgan and Chester Jakubzak, who graduated last year.

Lettermen from last year's squad will be Charles Stewart, Ralph Boger, Arnold Driscoll, Bob Gleason and Robert Steinfeldt. Other members that were on the first squad last year and are expected back are Ellsworth and Richard Oilschlager, Richard Millenbah, and Harold Krumrei. There are also many other boys who were on the second squad last year who will give the bigger boys a good run.

The basketball schedule has not yet been made out, but the teams that competed last year will be the same. They are Adams-Friendship, Plainfield, Westfield, Montello, Wautoma, and Port Edwards.

--Arnold Driscoll

SENIORS - CONTINUED

Harvey Eichsteadt---Milding those goofy cows.

Arnold Driscoll----Jerkin' sodas, winking at the girls.

Yours Truly-----I fought the bats

OH? THAT THOSE DAYS WERE HERE AGAIN! !

We pupils always seem to think that the teachers have to stay home and recuperate after a winter of hardships. However, an alert reporter has ferreted out the hiding places of the faculty when they were vacationing during the past summer.

Miss L'Hommedieu, after her first strenuous years of moulding the minds of children, found it necessary to combine rest with play. She spent the summer in Illinois on a farm. Her most vigorous exercise was learning the Schottisch, Square Dance and the Polka. Now, Miss L'Hommedieu, we are counting on you to make our matinee dances more lively.

Miss Wicker, feeling the need to travel, visited Miss L'Hommedieu in Madison and took a trip to Richland Center. She went bicycling, played tennis, and went swimming. She even indulged in a two weeks' vacation at camp. In fact, as she passed through the Rapids on her return trip, her glowing tan lead one to believe that she had turned gypsy.

Miss Kniep took a number of trips, going to Illinois, Appleton, Oshkosh, and Madison. While attending an Outdoor Civic Concert in Milwaukee, she heard Helen Jopson, the great opera singer. It must be that lake air refreshes a person, for she too spent a week at the Chain of Lakes at Waupaca. She also went to see Miss Sinkular who is in the Columbia Hospital in Milwaukee.

We would not have to look twice at Mr. Radmer to tell how he spent the greatest share of his vacation. Yes, his copper colored skin reveals the fact that he spent his time at some lake swimming and fishing. He also attended summer school at Northwestern.

My goodness! Here is another one who spent a portion of his time at school. It is none other than Mr. Lewis, who attended Stout Institute. He reports that his was spent very profitably.

Miss Hermanson went way up into the North Woods and did a great deal of fishing. Have any luck Miss Hermanson? After attending the largest part of her vacation at home in Edgerton, she became very ambitious. In August, she did secretarial work at the White-water State Teachers' College.

Miss Reisinger had a grand and glorious time at Shawano Lake and at Fox Lake.

Miss Landaal went to the North Woods and spent her time at a summer cottage.

Mr. Rawson made a trip to Iowa, Michigan, and Illinois.

No wonder the teachers appeared ready for a busy school year!

--Margaret Olson

THE SENIORS' SUMMER SUN SPOTS

Margaret Olson--I worked all summer. P.S. I'm still doing it.

Virginia Hopkins---I went to Chicago. Say, didn't you see my name in the paper when I left?

Mildred Zeimann--I spent my afternoons in Nekoosa, and Nekoosa spent its evenings with me.

Agnes Bruener--I'm not sayin'.

Janet Swanson--When I wasn't in Michigan, I was in Clifford's car.

Dale Ashburn----Getting all wet under Alexander's sprinkler.

Lorraine Schilluis--That would be telling.

Audrey Wilhorn--I went to Milwaukee. Some Fun!

Ralph Boger--Oh, I just went to scout camp for awhile.

Marjorie Hubbard--Ask Ed.

Marjorie Peterson----I spent my whole summer in getting rid of something that bothered me.

Gerald Hauser--Getting myself into trouble by trying to keep Curly out of it.

Charles Stewart--I took the boys, (and girls) out in my new buggy to show them how fast she could go.

Bette Howard--Nubs only knows.

Ethel Mae Murgatroyd-----Wouldn't you like to know.

Marjorie Sage----I stuck close to Milly, or else I stayed with my nieces.

--Ione Hasse
