Question 2 - I have a very special wedding photo of my grandparents taken on December 6, 1913. The picture is only 5 x 7. My grandfather is wearing high-button shoes, and my grandmother looks so beautiful in her fashionable wedding dress of that era. I got to know her while growing up, so the picture is like a link to the past.

Question 6 - About two years ago, we moved from Florida to Nevada. We had a one-story house in Florida and bought a one-story here. For my money, that's the only way to go after a "certain age" when the knees can get a bit stiff. It's nice to have everything you need on one floor.

Best memories of Vietnam: Water skiing in Vung Tau, until I saw snakes and lost my glasses. Most excellent weed. Hamburgers & hot dogs on China Beach, until some idiots had a few too many. Hot chicken dinner & mini bottle of brandy brought to us by boat after being stuck on my Mike boat for 2 days without food or water in seas too rough to land. Worst memories: Everything else over 6 years.

If you have diverticulosis/itis - how are you dealing with it?

I do not have it yet but half of the people over 60 do. The following are some of the references I used when I was teaching student and working with patients. The first three are broad sources and are very current. The last two are specific to Gastrointestinal and Digestive Disorders.

I have an autographed picture of polar explorer and preservationist Will Steger and another of his lead dogs. He is the most amazing person I know. <http://www.nationalgeographic.com/explorers/bios/will-steger/> stegerwildernesscenter.org www.willstegerfoundation.org/
